Iris Time

We cordially extend an invitation to you and your friends to visit our Iris Gardens where over fifteen-hundred varieties are growing.

The dwarfs and hybrids start to bloom in March; Tall Bearded peak bloom should be from about April 17th thru May 15th; Louisianas and Japanese Iris bloom here in late May and June.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

BEARDED IRIS: Iris are very easy to grow and give much satisfaction with the minimum of care, but to obtain the best results, the following cultural suggestions should be observed.

WHEN RECEIVED: Open the package of rhizomes at once to admit air. The rhizomes should be planted as soon as they are received. If this is not possible, store in a cool dry place. These plants will be received by you with the tops cut back, just as they should be, ready for planting. If the roots or leaves appear dry this does them no harm.

WHERE TO PLANT: Select a sunny well-drained location. Iris will grow in semi-shade but will bloom more freely if they have sun at least half the day. They do not like wet feet and where the soil is heavy and the drainage poor, they should be planted on ridges. In loam or sandy soil they may be planted at the ground level.

DEPTH TO PLANT: Place the rhizome just below the surface of the ground with the roots well spread underneath. Never plant your rhizome too deep. Keep in mind the texture of your soil. Heavier soil requires shallower planting. Firm the soil tightly around each rhizome. Do not leave any air pockets.

WHEN TO PLANT: Iris can be planted at any time, but late in June, July, September and October are most suitable for the San Joaquin Valley. It is not advisable to plant during extreme heat waves. Early planting establishes the new iris plant before winter. This also is the time to divide and reset clumps of iris that are crowded, generally 3 and 4 year old clumps.

DISTANCE APART: This will depend on your particular plans. Generally iris are planted from 14" to 2' apart. If you desire immediate clump effect plant 8" apart in groups of 3 or more of one variety. You may have to divide and separate your plantings more often, but you will have a wonderful splash of color sooner than you would if you planted only one rhizome of one variety.

SOIL PREPARATION: If your garden is new, no fertilizer will be necessary; but where the soil is poor, well rotted cow manure, poultry droppings, bone meal, Vigoro, compost or any well-balanced commercial fertilizer not too high in nitrogen will be satisfactory. Iris love phosphate and potash, so save any wood ashes and spread them over the iris beds. Do not overdo fertilizing as a heavy fertilization promotes soft growth that is apt to rot and you will not get the bloom that you should if you use fertilizer wisely.

CULTIVATING: Cultivate shallowly. Keep your iris free of weeds and do not allow neighboring plants and shrubs to encroach upon them. Remember, they should have sunlight right down to the Rhizome. Remove the outer leaves as they brown. At all times keep litter, old iris leaves, grasses, etc., away from the rhizomes. Clean cultivation is the greatest precaution against most iris troubles and pests.

WATERING: Newly set plants need moisture at the roots under the thick fleshy rhizome. Water well after planting and then keep moderately moist until well established and growing. Water at fairly long intervals in dry weather. Established plants require very little water, and may be left all summer without water, but an occasional soaking will give more increase and better blooms in the spring. Keep moderately moist before and during blooming season to produce the best flowers.

IRIS TROUBLES: Root rot is the most extensive, generally caused by excessive moisture, poor drainage or sour soil. See that your iris are well drained and sunny. In outbreaks of rot, remove the soft portions (we use a peach pitter for cutting out rot). Dust cleanly scoured portion with Arasan and expose the wound to the air and sun. There is no need to dig up your plant. Leaf spot occurs at times - usually after a warm rain. Spray with the following formula and control Leaf Spot, Aphids, Thrip: For a 3 gallon sprayer use 6 tablespoonsful of 50% wettable DDT; 2 level tablespoonsful DuPont Spreader Sticker, 3 level tablespoonsful Fermate, 1½ tablespoonsful nicotine sulphate. Mix DDT and Fermate into paste - separately, then add nicotine sulphate (a liquid) and the liquid spreader sticker. Add water to fill the sprayer and keep the mixture well agitated, as the Fermate will settle if it is not kept agitated. You may have to spray several times to get control if you have badly affected plants. Another good control for leaf spot and aphids is the Bordeaux Mixture and Black Leaf 40 and Dupont Spreader Sticker. Used according to direction.

SIZE OF RHIZOMES: The size of an Iris rhizome depends largely upon the variety. While some very fine varieties produce large rhizomes, some of our most lovely and free-flowering varieties always produce small rhizomes, no matter where they are grown. We give No. 1 top size rhizomes, but they will not all be uniformly large.

MINIATURE BEARDED IRIS: Being shallow rooted, these may be planted slightly deeper than the Tall Beards, the fertilizing may be reduced in half and cultivated less deeply, and they may be planted six inches apart. Otherwise treat the same as the Tall Beards.

REMONTANT OR TWICE FLOWERING IRIS: They require full sun for the maximum of fall bloom, and should be given a little added fertilizer after flowering in the spring to bring on the fall bloom, otherwise treat as Tall Beards.

ONCOCYCLUS, REGELIA AND ONCOGELIA IRIS: Select a sunny, well drained spot. Incorporate hydrated lime and bonemeal in the soil. Plant on a ridge to insure drainage, covering rhizome ¾". In cold regions mulch over the winter with excelsior, straw or other light airy material. A dry resting period after flowering is necessary, so if your garden is not dry in summer, dig rhizomes after foliage has died down and store in dry packing material until time to plant - which should be late in the fall after the first rains.

JAPANESE, LOUISANAS AND OTHER BEARDLESS IRIS: Japanese Iris are gross feeders, and to do their best they require a great deal of fertilizer and a lot of water during the growing season. They also require an acid soil. Well rotted barnyard manure is the best fertilizer. Bone meal and lime are injurious to these Iris and must be avoided. A liberal quantity of peat should be added to the soil, compost is also excellent. Full sun is essential for the best results, although they will stand some shade during part of the day. If planted in the garden with other plants, it is best to dig a bed about 16" deep and refill the bed with rich garden soil thoroughly mixed with about one quarter peat and one quarter well-rotted manure. The crown of the plant should be placed two inches below the surface, and the roots should be well spread out. They should be kept well watered after they are planted, until they are well established. Keep them well watered right up to and through the flowering season. You will notice that the method of handling the Japanese and other Beardless Iris is just the reverse of the treatment required for the Bearded Iris.

DUTCH IRIS: Plant 4" to 5" deep in any good well drained garden soil. Bone meal may be incorporated in the soil, or any good commercial fertilizer or well rotted barnyard manure. The bulbs like to dry out and rest after the blooming season and may be lifted after the foliage dies down and stored until fall.

We hope these suggestions will be of some value. If we can be of any further help please call on us at any time.
